CASE NUMBER: 3:14-cr-91

SPECIAL CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISION

1. The defendant shall participate in a cognitive behavioral programming, designed by the supervising officer such as Thinking for a Change.
2. As directed by the Court, if during the period of supervised release the supervising probation officer determines that defendant is in need of placement in a Residential Re-Entry Center (RRC), the defendant shall voluntarily report to such a facility as directed by the supervising probation officer, cooperate with all rules and regulations of the facility, participate in all recommended programming, and not withdraw from the facility without prior permission of the supervising probation officer. The Court retains and exercises ultimate responsibility in this delegation of authority to the probation officer. See United States v. Kent, 209 F.3d 1073 (8th Cir. 2000).
3. The defendant shall maintain a residence throughout his period of probation.
4. The defendant shall submit their person, residence, workplace, vehicle, computer, and/or possessions to a search conducted by a United States Probation Officer based upon evidence of a violation of a condition of supervision. Failure to submit to a search may be grounds for revocation, additional criminal charges, and arrest. The defendant shall notify any other residents that the premises may be subject to searches pursuant to this condition.

Special Findings Justifying Special Conditions:

- a. The defendant does have a history of some complications on supervision and would benefit from a program that might address his cognition.
- b. The defendant's lease on his apartment is up in April 2016, and the court wants to make sure that he has a place to reside.
- c. This case is unusual because the defendant believes that he has a constitutional right to possess a firearm. The defendant believes that his conviction in New York is such that he's been restored to all of his rights and that that conviction does not operate as a bar to possessing a firearm. It appears to the court that the defendant was convicted of a crime that would prohibit him from possessing a firearm and while New York has a Restoration of Civil Liberties Act it doesn't include a restoration of the right to keep and bear a firearm and so it is not covered.
